FAST FOOD EATING GUIDE

Stay on track even when life happens — smarter picks at the drive-thru, no-excuses eating-out strategy.

The 5 swaps that matter most

You don't need to avoid fast food forever to stay on track — you need a handful of defaults you use every time you're there.

EVERY TIME, NO MATTER THE CHAIN:

- ☐ Grilled over fried or crispy
- ☐ Single patty / regular size over double or large
- ☐ Skip or half the bun, or go lettuce-wrapped
- ☐ Sauce and dressing on the side, use half
- ☐ Water, black coffee, or diet soda over sugared drinks

Chain-by-chain quick picks

Type	Smart order
Mexican grill (bowl-style)	Bowl not burrito, double protein, light rice, extra veg, skip queso/sour cream
Burger chains	Single patty, no top bun or lettuce wrap, side salad instead of fries
Sub sandwiches	6-inch not footlong, double protein add-on, load vegetables, light sauce
Chicken chains	Grilled over fried, skip the biscuit/fries, side salad or fruit cup
Coffee shops	Black coffee or americano, unsweetened, nonfat milk, skip syrup pumps
Pizza	Thin crust, extra vegetables, blot the grease, 2 slices + side salad

The no-excuses rule

You will eat out. The plan isn't to avoid it — the plan is to have a default order ready before you get to the counter, so you're not deciding while hungry and staring at a menu board.

Pick your 2–3 go-to orders from the table above, memorize them, and use them every time. That's the entire strategy — no willpower required once the decision is already made.
