

● MR. DISCIPLINE

FITNESS GOAL WORKBOOK

Set goals you'll actually keep, with a system for tracking the discipline behind them.

Set the goal

Vague goals produce vague results. Fill this in before you start — specific enough that you'd know the exact day you hit it.

My goal (be specific — what, by when):

Why this actually matters to me:

How I'll know I've hit it (the number, the photo, the lift):

The one habit that will make the biggest difference:

Weekly progress tracker

Week	Weight / Measurement	Workouts Done	Notes
1
2
3
4
5
6

Weigh in or measure the same day, same time each week. One bad number doesn't mean the plan failed — the trend line is what matters, not any single week.

Habit & discipline checklist

THIS WEEK, DID I:

- ☐ Hit my planned number of workouts
- ☐ Get 7+ hours of sleep most nights
- ☐ Hit my protein target most days
- ☐ Move on at least one "rest" day (walk, stretch)
- ☐ Show up on the day I least felt like it

If you checked 4 or 5, keep the plan exactly as it is. If you checked 2 or fewer, the plan isn't the problem — pick one habit above and make it non-negotiable next week.